

Watch Your Step!

A downtown street intersection is no place to read a newspaper, particularly if you value life and limb. Pedestrians and autoists who violate traffic regulations and ordinary standards of common sense in driving and walking will be checked up all next week by a city patrolman who will broadcast through the loud-speaker of the safety car shown here. The car, brought here by the Toledo Safety Council, will cruise Toledo's streets, educating those who ride and those who walk in the technique of avoiding accidents. Patrolman Harry Steele is at the 'mike' in the picture, with Tony Gulotta at the wheel. Jay Thompson, secretary of the Safety Council, is directing the operations of the safety car while it is in Toledo.
