

NELSON HAS CONFESSED TO MURDER

Told Police that He Killed Bayou.

Said He Saw Him Strike Mrs.
Nelson in the Face After Daring Him to Shoot.

Charged with the murder of his wife's cousin, Walter Bayou, Wilker Nelson, held at the central police station for the crime, confessed to the police Monday

The confession was taken in writing by Detectives Hall, Daly and Howard and was signed, it is said, by Nelson. The statement follows:

'I returned to my home, 218

Wilker Nelson.

Mitchell street, about 11 o'clock Sunday night with Ernest Frank. I saw Bayou strike my wife in the face and he dared me to shoot him. I did so and we clinched, falling to the porch."

In addition the detectives are said to have secured a statement from Mrs. Nelson. At 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, in Coroner Faber's office, the inquest on the death of Bayou commenced.

Nelson, his wife, Frank and other witnesses were present and testified. It is probable that as the result of the inquest Nelson will be arraigned in police court for murder Wednesday morning.

CHIEF'S REPORT RELIEVES OFFICERS

Arrested Saturday night while drunk, during which he insisted upon going to sleep in the Terminal depot, J. A. Kelliher of Akron, aged 60, complained Sunday night to Turnkey Pierce at the central station, that he was suffering from a broken leg. He claimed that he had been handled roughly by the officers in the patrol wagon.

Chief Knapp said that Kelliher walked as if lame when arrested and did not complain of pain on the way to the station or after reaching the station Saturday night.

HEATING APPARATUS AT POLICE STATION EXPLODED AGAIN

With the mercury dropping down the tube like a man falling out of a window, the antiquated steam heating apparatus at the central police station exploded early Monday morning and for a few hours the rookery was like a barn with all the doors open.

UNIQUE CHARGE OF BEGGING MADE BY POLICE CLERK

Victim of Hard Luck Begged to Be Sent to the Workhouse and Was Accommodated.

"Aw, say, cull, send me over for ten days, will yer?" asked John Ford, a one-armed man, of Police Clerk Krieger Monday.

"What's that?" demanded the astonished clerk, scarcely believing his senses.

"I say, send me over to the wolks fer awhile. I'm hard up, and want to get in outer the cold," Ford replied.

"Why don't you go out and slug somebody, or steal something, and get sent over?" Krieger asked, his interest aroused.

"Naw. Dis is on the level wit me, see? I never stole nothin' in mo life, an' I ain't husky enough to slug anyone that will not come back at me. Say, maybe you'll let me wallop you once, and you kin prefer a charge agin me?"

"Not on your life," responded the clerk, "but if you will wait a minute I'll have it fixed so you can go over."

Krieger then went into the courtroom and asked Judge Brough if he would send Ford over to the works under the conditions.

"What are you going to charge him with?" Judge Brough asked, as he surveyed the applicant.

"I guess we can prove begging on him; he begged to go over," said Krieger.

The papers were made out, and Monday afternoon Ford went to the workhouse with the other prisoners, probably the first man who ever entered the institution under like circumstances.

LITTLE TROUBLE AT THE MALLEABLE PLANT

One Striker Arrested for Carrying Concealed Weapons — Many of the Men Anxious to Return to Work.

The strikers at the Malleable Casting company caused little trouble at the plant Friday morning due to the successful handling of the crowd by the police.

Officers were stationed about the plant and the strikers began to assemble early. Several times large numbers of the men started for the gates but were kept back by the police. They did not intend to cause any trouble and many wanted to return to work.

Several men in the crowd were taken into the office of the company and searched for weapons, but only one arrest was made during the morning. Mike Zagyro was searched by Patrolman Rock and a large slingshot found on his person. Zagyro was charged with carrying concealed weapons.

The other men searched had no weapons and were released.

About 1,000 Hungarians were about the plant Friday. One of the police men told one of the English speaking Hungarians to tell the men to disperse and return to work Monday. The man did this and the crowd dispersed in less than a half hour.

A meeting of the Hungarians will be held today at Juhasz' hall to decide what action they will take.

The plant is running with the furnace room out of service. Everything between the company and the strikers will probably be settled by Monday and it is expected that the entire plant will be in operation at that time.

MOTHER CAUSED SON'S ARREST

Created Disturbance at Home
While Under the Influence of Liquor.

Lawrence Boudrie, 19, was arrested for creating a disturbance at his home, 824 Utah street, Thursday night, upon complaint of his mother.

With tears flowing down her cheeks, Mrs. Boudrie told Police Judge Brough how her son abused her while under the influence of liquor.

"God knows it's hard for a mother to take such a step against her own flesh and blood," said she as she left the witness stand Friday morning. "but what else can I do?"

Patrolman Strassburg, who arrested Boudrie, said the boy threatened to drown himself.

Judge Brough fined Boudrie $20 and costs. Later, while talking to his aunt, the young fellow sobbingly declared his parents had no more use for him than for the dog, but the tear-stained countenance of his mother belied the words.

LIKES POLICE BUT HOME IS BETTER

Cleveland Lad Lost on Street Found By Cop.

Tearfully Asked Infirmary Director to "Please Send Him Home" to Father.

John Lipocky, a Cleveland "kid," apparently either deserted by his mother or fully deprived of her protection in a city where he has neither friend nor acquaintance, stood forlornly in the county infirmary office Thursday morning, and asked Infirmary Director Dillon to "please send him home."

He was very little and very plucky, but his three days of disappointments at the Lagrange street station had worn down his nerve. His lip trembled and big tears forced themselves through his lids and rolled down his cheeks as the policemen who brought him a took their departure.

Director Dillon is going to send him back at once.

John Lipocky and his mother, Mrs. Julia Lipocky, came up by boat from Cleveland to visit the mother's father, leaving Saturday night and arriving in Toledo Sunday.

"His name is George Feedrom," says the youngster, "but I don't know

"His name is George Feedrom," says the youngster, "but I don't know where he lives or what he does. I never was in Toledo before.

"We came up on the boat. When we were coming away from the landing, I turned to look back and when I turned again, my mother was gone. I guess she got on a car.

"So I didn't know what to do, and after while, I thought I would try to walk back home. When I was crossing a bridge, a man asked me where I was going, and took me to the police station. They treated me all right, there, but I want to go home."

John is 15, but looks four years younger. He is a fair-haired little chap. His father is John Lipocky, molder at the Ohio foundry, Cleveland, and lives at 2838 E. Ninety-second, S. E., in Cleveland.

The authorities are at a loss to understand why some inquiry has not been made for the boy. Since Sunday night he has been at the Lagrange street station, but no lost boy of his description was reported to the police.
